

NEW JEFFERSON TO BE SPLENDID

as a whole and not as the new and the old, the architectural style of the original building will be followed, not only in the addition but also in the auditorium on Main Street.

Court On Main Street.

will not be changed, but the Main and Jefferson Street fronts will undergo radical modifications. This is necessitated because instead of a court opening toward the adjoining lot, as in the old plan, a court opening on Main Street will be substituted, as shown on the typical plan in the drawings herewith. This change in the court location gives the hotel a larger number of outside rooms than formerly and a larger percentage of rooms having a Southern exposure. It and the provision for increased accommodations changes the entire character of the Main Street front, for instead of the four stories of rooms as originally planned, we now have seven stories, making a nine-story structure on Main Street, two practically uninterrupted view from Franklin Street to Main Street. The architectural treatment of the lobby will be changed from the French feeling, as formerly, with its exposed iron work, to the renaissance, with large marbled columns. The main stair between the courts will occupy its old axial position, but instead of being enclosed between walls, it will be open with a bronze rail.

Changes on Office Floor.

The office floor of the building will have minor changes in that the barber shop will be converted into a store, the ladies' entrance brought out on Jefferson Street, the drug store extended on Main Street and enlarged in size. On the other side of the lobby will be the stair leading to the rathskeller, the billiard room, the barroom and a passage connects the first floor of the auditorium, which will be occupied by the barber shop, flower store, assembly room, entrance and the large sample rooms.

The rathskeller will be made an important feature; it will be complete in every detail. Areas along the Main Street front will afford light and ventilation to it. The gallery floor, which is the second floor of the new part, will be occupied by the banquet rooms, dining room, private dining rooms and kitchen. It will communicate across to the main floor of the auditorium, which will contain the assembly room and dressing rooms. The kitchen and service end, in the main, occupy their old places, but they will have more space than formerly. They will communicate by a special stair with the bakery, which will be enlarged to meet the new demands. The nurses' and children's dining rooms will be in a part of the palm court wing. They will have a place easy of access for mothers' inspection. A feature, lacking in the old house, will be a child's play room, affording a space which children and nurses may occupy as their own. The mechanical equipment will be of the best. The house will be provided with automatic sweeping arrangement, an automatic temperature regulator apparatus. The entire mechanical plant will be placed on a first-class basis. The preliminary drawings, as printed herewith, are completed, and they show the work practically as it will be. The final working drawings are not finished, and will not be before July 1st. As soon as possible after that date bids will be invited for the work of rebuilding, and in the shortest time necessary to do the work a primer contract will be completed. It is not possible to convey all the points of a large enterprise in the scope of an article such as this, but it would seem that the company's statement that there will be a greater and more glorious Jefferson, gives good promise of realization.

New Auditorium.

The lot adjoining the hotel on Main Street will be occupied by an entirely new fire-proof building, the auditorium of the hotel. Here again, the new will be the same as the old in treatment. Apart from its added height, one of the principal changes, not only in the auditorium, but also in the whole building, will be the treatment of the Main Street entrance, with engaged columns extending through two stories, thus dignifying the principal entrance to the hotel. A carefully executed maquette will extend from this doorway to the pavement.

The material of construction will be light brick and terra cotta as formerly. Probably the greatest change will be the one which will show itself less—that is, the change in construction. All the new work will be entirely fireproof in every respect; there will be neither wood, lath nor board partitions, all steel, terra cotta and cement; and it is felt that with these materials, the Jefferson will be practically indestructible.

Considering now the interior of the house, the general scheme of completion will be as formerly, as entrance lobby, the court lobby, the stair and the office will occupy their old familiar places. But although the general scheme is the same, yet there will be many minor changes, which it is hoped will make a more successful result than formerly. The special features of the interior will be, first, a broad gallery, which will sweep around the entire lobby, in the dining room level. This gallery will afford a complete view of all the movement below, and at the same time a certain privacy, and second, the removal of the walls which formerly separated the Jefferson palm court and the office and the substitution of columns, thus giving an arrangement by which the spectator standing on the balcony at the edge of the palm court may command a of the few that did not retrograde after the "boom" had passed on its fleeting way. Judge George W. Morris, judge of the Corporation Court, who presided so ably in the famous McCue murder trial, in speaking of this, said:

"Charlottesville has never boomed in the sense in which some other localities have, but its progress has been steady and substantial. Its real estate has steadily increased in value and its population in number.

Fine Schools.

Charlottesville has one of the best public school systems in the State, with a large and handsome school building, in which good work is done and to which citizens of all classes send their children. There are private schools here both male and female of the very best grade.

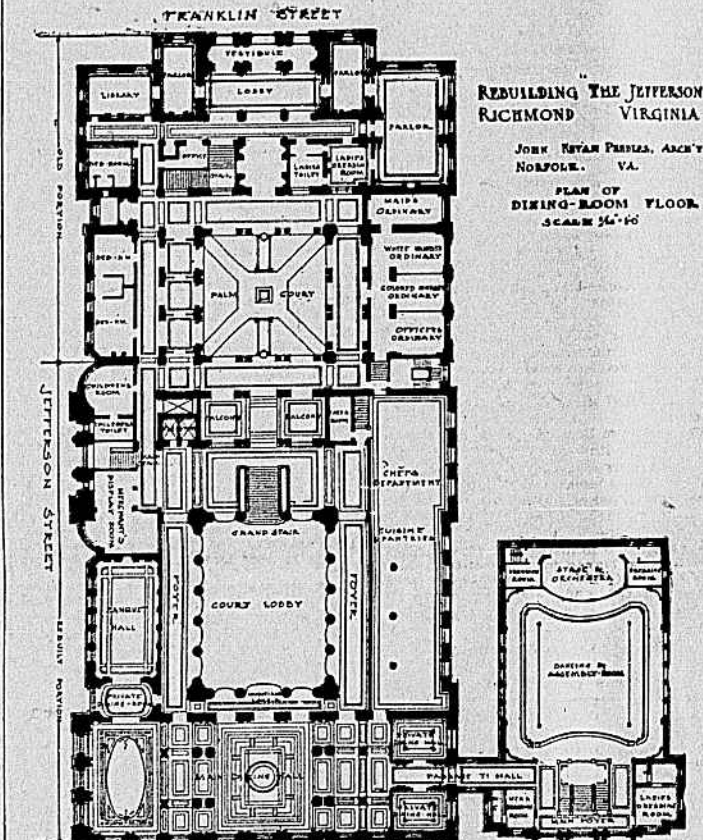

Of recent days, the increase in real estate values have been most rapid and it is with great difficulty that a home can be found for rent. Dwellings are rapidly going up to meet this increasing demand.

Of course, Charlottesville is the educational center of the State. The University of Virginia may also be said to be upon a "boom," with a larger number of students than she has ever had before in her history and with her material interests looked after and advanced by an energetic and capable president. On the whole, Charlottesville and the community are prosperous and on the up grade.

Wonderful Development.

Along the same lines, Hon. John W. Fishburne, prominent in civic affairs and in the rebuilding of the city, said: "The man who has lived in the city of Charlottesville, his entire life, there is nothing more remarkable than the wonderful development of this little city in recent years. This development is caused, in a great degree, by the fact of having two immense trunk line intersections at Charlottesville and also to the fact of its wonderful advantages as a residential and educational center.

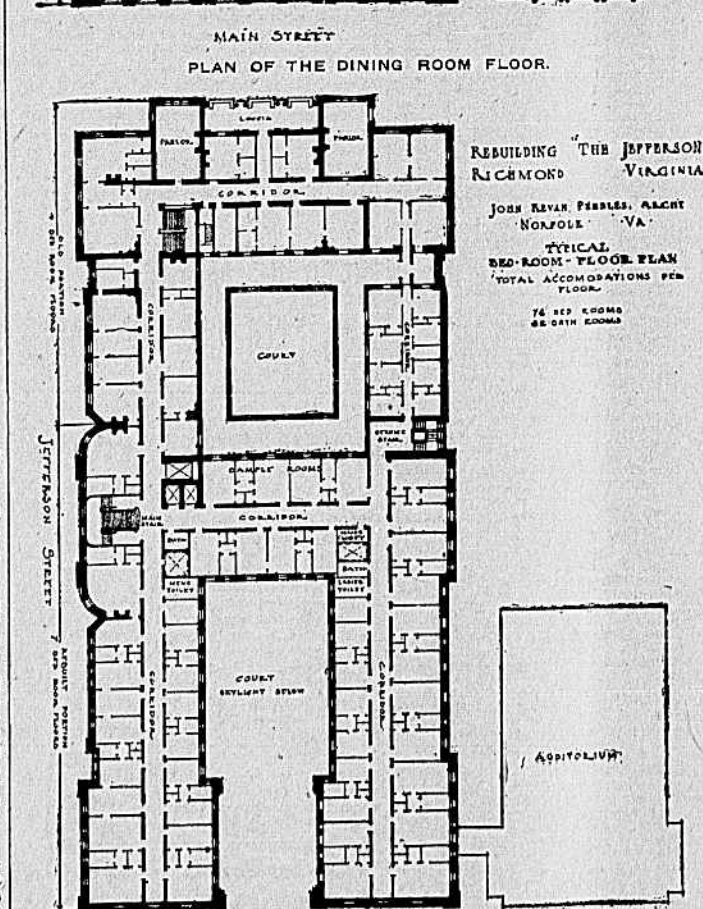

"Our public schools are most excellent and have a great advantage in being situated near enough to the University of Virginia to feel its influence. The public schools and also the private schools in our city gain great advantage in being able to secure a part of the time of some of those who come to the University to obtain post graduate degrees. In this way our schools often secure the services of some of the most skilled teachers in the country.

"In recent years in the county of Albemarle, adjacent to Charlottesville, a great many people of wealth, attracted by the delightful society around the University, have bought property in the county and in some instances, built very beautiful and expensive homes.

"The University of Virginia has been for many years recognized as the South's educational institution in the South, but it has been very much handicapped by not having a business manager to conduct its affairs. The recent appointment of Dr. Edwin Anderson Alderman, a man most thoroughly equipped as an executive head of a great institution, has given the university such an impetus that it is believed in a few years the number course, they will be a great advantage to Charlottesville and it may be from its geographical situation. It will become in time one of the railroad centers of the State of Virginia.

As far as the climate is concerned, there are a number of gentlemen who have come here from various parts of the country on account of the temperate nature of the climate and the healthfulness of the community.

"The scenery around Charlottesville is varied and exceptionally beautiful and very much pleasure is gotten by those who enjoy horse back riding and driving.

Interesting Facts.

Mayor George W. Oliver, who came into office in September of last year, furnished the following information regarding the condition of the city government and its financial affairs:

"Charlottesville was incorporated in 1887, with a population of 2,800 and with an income from various sources amounting to less than $30,000. To-day its population amounts to more than 10,000 and its income to more than $100,000; an increase in population of 7,200 and an increase in income of $70,000 a year in a less time than seventeen years.

"Twelve hundred children attend the public schools of the city, and these schools are of so high a standard that their graduates find no difficulty in passing the entrance examination at the University of Virginia, nor in graduating from that eminent institution of learning. The city tax is only $1.32-1-2, and its bonded debt amounts to but $157,000, while its assessed value of real and personal property amounts to $3,500,000.

"It is a matter of considerable interest that Charlottesville sets aside 2-1-2 per cent. as a sinking fund as against 1 per cent. set aside by many of the other cities of the State."

Mayor Oliver, in speaking of the city's prosperity, said:

"Real estate is upon a steady and healthy increase, and the material growth of the city is attracting a population that will do honor to any community. A large number of families come here in order to take advantage of the exceptional educational facilities that the city presents.

Owens Utilities.

Charlottesville owns her own water works, public school buildings, fire department and a number of substantial municipal structures. The water works alone are worth more than the bonded debt. Recently we have expended $50,000 in street improvements, and it is worthy of notice that when we issued $80,000 worth of 4 per cent. bonds for this purpose the Jefferson National Bank of this city, took the entire issue at par with concessions added, so that we received the face value of the bonds, thus showing the excellent financial reputation of Charlottesville.

"We are shortly to have a new post-office building that is to cost not less than $100,000, and which will be a great ornament to our city."

"Our liquor laws are exceptionally good and our police force most efficient. In a word, I feel that Charlottesville is to be congratulated on the substantial advance she has been steadily making."

Hon. J. H. Lindsay, owner and editor of the "Charlottesville Progress" commented recently in what Messrs. Fishburne, Morris and Oliver had said, and added that he was heartily in favor of the movement made by The Times-Dispatch to induce the best class of people from the North and West who desire homes, to come to Virginia to settle. He said he thought that all Virginians should stand together in leaping the whole country know of the advantages that the State possesses, and the enormous strides she has taken within the last few years.

Officers.

The officers of the city of Charlottesville are Judge George W. Morris, of the Corporation Court; Frank Glumore, Esq., Commonwealth's attorney; George Perkins, Esq., City Attorney; Mayor, G. W. Oliver, President of the Council; Colonel R. T. W. Duke; City Treasurer, C. H. Walker; Chief of Police, Captain T. A. Trice, and Aldermen, Messrs. J. W. Graves, R. T. W. Duke, W. F. Long, C. S.
